TEXT:

Nowadays, many young people leave their countries to other countries or to western world. Several factors contribute to this phenomenon.

The economies of many African countries are in serious crisis. They suffer from budgets deficits and excessive borrowings, leading to youth unemployment. With such situations, young people who cannot manage the economies well go abroad to look for employments. Another factor is the bad quality of the education in African countries. A lot of African citizens who want to continue higher education prefer to go abroad and study in famous universities. Political causes also make people leave for other countries or western countries.

Read the following text carefully and answer the questions that follow

TEXT:

Every year after final examinations, our school organizes an excursion to allow students to discover some touristic sites in the country. So, last year, my comrades and I were very excited because the school was going to visit the fortified houses of Tamberma in the Savannah region. We left Lomé in the morning by bus. On the way, we were singing and clapping with joy. We arrived there in the evening and stayed in the hotel. The next morning, after a delicious meal, we went to the site and the guide introduced us to the local chief. Then, we went on to visit the Tata Tamberma castles. "Our ancestors built these castles to protect themselves against enemies and slave traders", explained the guide. The doors of the castles were so small that we had to get on our knees to enter them. We took a lot of photos and made videos as well. I was really impressed by the beauty and the conversation of those castles as well as the culture of the people.
